

Seth Clevenger

Seth Clevenger is managing editor of features at Transport Topics, the largest trade publication covering the trucking industry.

He writes and edits news features and produces web and video content for TT's weekly newspaper, supplemental publications and TTNews.com.

Clevenger, who joined TT in 2011, covers the latest industry developments with a special focus on transportation technology, including autonomous vehicles and driver-assist systems, transportation management software, telematics and mobile communications, data analytics, routing and navigation software, onboard video and more.

He plans, edits and produces TT's bimonthly iTECH supplement, which examines emerging trends in the transportation technology sector, as well as TT's annual Top 100 lists of the largest for-hire and private carriers and Top 50 lists of the largest 3PLs and global freight carriers. He also oversees the planning and production of TT's bimonthly Equipment & Maintenance Update.

Clevenger, currently based in Alexandria, Va., is a native of northwest Ohio. He is a 2005 graduate of Miami University in Oxford, Ohio.
